More specifically, the project carries out two innovative and interconnected research studies and it develops particular VET programmes and training activities for both social partners and migrant communities.

OBJECTIVES

Ethnic diversity, inclusion, workplace diversity, inequality, discrimination and conflict resolution are themes developed in all the activities of the project. MigrAID's ultimate aim is to strengthen the skills and competencies of trade unionists, employers and migrants. Through informal education, the project aspires to better prepare the aforementioned groups to deal with the on-going challenges and demands of the labour market.

Some the objectives of the project are:

- the development of digital tools for learning
- the construction of sectoral vocational educational training (VET) programmes
- the raise of awareness among employers on ethnic diversity
- the development of synergies for the collaboration between institutions and individuals working on migration
- the exchange of know-how and experiences.
